

SETBP1 Family and Research Conference 2024 Sponsorship Opportunities

We are excited to announce that the 2024 SETBP1 Family and Research Conference will be held October 11-13 in Austin, Texas! The purpose of the conference is to connect families affected by SETBP1 differences with each other and with scientists studying SETBP1. During the three-day event, attendees will learn about the latest research involving SETBP1 and have the opportunity to participate in research studies and patient registries. In addition, caregivers and patients will have time to connect with and get to know other families. Most members of our community have never met another person with SETBP1-HD.

SETBP1-HD is a neurogenetic disorder that causes a variety of symptoms including intellectual disability, low muscle tone, severe speech difficulties and autism. Approximately 200 individuals have been diagnosed worldwide. We expect to serve over 30 families and 10 research teams at this year's conference.

The SETBP1 Society is a 501(c)3 that was founded in 2017 with the goal of providing support to individuals with SETBP1 haploinsufficiency and related disorders and their families by promoting discussion, funding research and expanding awareness. Hosting a conference of this magnitude is a significant expense for our organization, but it is central to our mission. We would love to invite you to support our work by underwriting this event. Every dollar helps! All donations are tax deductible.

"When I opened my son's lab report and saw that a difference in his SETBP1 gene was the cause of his developmental delays, it was completely overwhelming. Almost nothing was known about SETBP1 disorder at the time. Through the SETBP1 Society, I have been able to meet other families whose children are incredibly similar to mine and it has been a gift to be able to share the unique joys and challenges of raising our children with people who truly get it" Parent of a child with SETBP1-HD

"Participating in SETBP1 research makes me feel like my family is contributing to what is known about SETBP1 and might one day contribute to the development of a therapy that will make life easier for my child. I have gone from feeling helpless to feeling hopeful and empowered." Parent of a child with SETBP1-HD
